

PolyU student shines in the 35th Japanese Speech Contest

One Japanese minor student from the Department of Chinese and Bilingual Studies, Mr. Wong Chung Chi, won the top award in the 35th Japanese Speech Contest held on 11th July 2010. It's the first time that PolyU student has won a grand champion award at the contest.

The Japanese Speech Contest is organized once every year by the Japan Society of Hong Kong. This year twenty six students have taken part in the competition from universities and language institutes around Hong Kong.

Mr. Wong has the highest marks, beating students majoring in Japanese from University of Hong Kong and Chinese University of Hong Kong, both of whom were ranked second and third respectively. Mr. Wong, who is a student of the School of Hotel & Tourism Management, has given a speech titled "Communication with aliens", which he trained with the Japanese teaching team at CBS.
